Greener

The design and build of your new home plays a huge role in its effect on both the environment and your wallet. There are a number of factors to consider that all come together to make a real difference.

Perhaps the most obvious of all is the use of high-efficiency double glazing as standard, which not only provides a cosy and light place to call home, but also increases overall energy efficiency. When all this is considered alongside overall development design that includes valuable green spaces, cycle storage and nearby public transport, the result is welcoming communities that will last long into the future.

This is perfectly complemented by the technology that is fitted to our homes.

A combination of smart thermostats, low-energy LED lighting, high-efficiency appliances and water-saving kitchens and bathrooms help to reduce wastage and save you money. Together, these factors ensure all our properties achieve an EPC rating of B.

In addition to prioritising energy efficiency, we also recognise the significance of overall sustainability in our homes. As a result, we construct each home using responsibly sourced materials.

Did you know?

According to the Home Builders Federation, on average, energy bills for new build homes are 55% cheaper. The monthly average energy bill for a new build property is £109, whereas the bill for existing property is £245- that's a saving of £135* per month or £1,627 per year. Those that buy a new build house specifically see even greater annual savings of £2,199.

Jake

After renting in Hackney for 6 years, first time buyer Jake McCormack finally made the much longed-for leap onto the property ladder.

“ I’m the third of my friends to buy at Feature17. We spend a lot of time in Walthamstow on the weekends - it’s got some great independent restaurants, bars, pubs and shops. ”

Residents' stories

Eva

Having rented in East London for 8 years, Eva decided it was time to step onto the property ladder and secure a property of her own. Seeking a home that offered a vibrant London lifestyle, she began her extensive search online.

When searching for her first home, Eva was looking for a well-designed property located within a friendly neighbourhood that offered excellent transport links. When it came to the property itself, Eva had her sights set on a new build home.

“ The last two apartments I rented were new builds and I personally prefer them. I like having the warranty and peace of mind. I also think new builds are better for insulation - older houses I always find are very cold. ”

Alice & Amy

Having previously rented together in Forest Gate, best friends for over a decade, Amy and Alice, decided they should buy a home together. They came across Countryside’s Feature17.

“ We were both ready to buy a property financially and, with us both being single, we were unlikely to move into or purchase a home with a partner in the near future, so it made sense for us to step onto the property ladder together. ”

Hannah & Tom

With both Hannah and Tom commuting into their London-based offices at least once a week, proximity to transport connections was an important consideration. Just a short walk from Wood Street train station, which offers regular trains to London Liverpool Street in 20 minutes, Feature17 was ideally suited to the couple’s lifestyle.

Another plus point of Feature17, for the self-professed eco-conscious couple, was Countryside’s strong ESG commitments, one of which is to become net zero by 2030.

“ We love the idea of raising a family near green space, there is also a huge playground here and a handy local super-market and post office, all of which combined to make us feel very at home straight away. ”

Why buy new?

Whether you are a first-time buyer, need more space, downsizing or making an investment, there's a whole host of reasons to buy a new build home from Countryside.

Make your home your own

Replacing a previous owner's idea of 'interior design' can be a costly and time-consuming process. Move into a brand new home from Countryside on the other hand, and you have the perfect blank canvas just waiting for you to make your home your own!

Energy efficient homes

A new Countryside home could save you up to £1,627* per year on your energy bills compared to an existing property. According to the Home Builders Federation, on average, energy bills for new homes are around 55% cheaper*, keeping you warm in the winter and saving you money on your utility bills.

10-year warranty and insurance

All our homes are built to National House-Building Council (NHBC) standards - the technical benchmark for newly-built homes. Included in your purchase, your home will also come with long-term reassurance thanks to a NHBC 10-year warranty and insurance (or equivalent).

The cost of upgrading an old home...

One of the biggest problems with buying an old home is that it's, well... old. Moving into a house that requires work may seem simple at first, but a quick lick of paint can soon grow into a time-consuming and expensive process - and that's just the work that needs doing immediately. The chances are that lots more will need upgrading relatively soon afterwards. In fact, we estimate an older home could cost you up to £70k+ extra*.
